A BRILLIANT CAMPAIGN

Lieut Farrow's all Summer Hunt for Hostile Indians in the Mountains of Northern Idaho

The Plan of the Operations which Resulted in Complete Success—Hardships of the Campaign—Splendid Work by the Umatilla Scouts

SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN

Walla Walla Oct 21 On the 18th inst Lieut Farrow arrived in Walla Walla with the hostile renegade Indians who had been depredating all over the mountains of northern Idaho the past few months In all there are fifty one very good looking Indians 21 bucks 18 squaws and 12 children Lieut Farrow and twenty of Col Lt ... cavalry have been on the war path with ... he Indian scouts and ... men of the 21st infantry since last July During all that time they have been constantly on the move and are ... by the hostiles into the ground In doing this they wore out two sets of horses and mules At one time the little command only had six mules left and were without anything to eat but berries for days together in a mountain country surmounted by everlasting snows On the twenty first of September they charged the Indian camp and drove the Indians off to another place where they fortified themselves All their camp equipage was captured and the hostiles were left without a horse or a pound of meat One night as they were about to attack the camp of Farrow a dog barked which caused the Indians to leave without doing any damage The command immediately followed them up the next morning and captured some squaws and children They found the dog which had given the Indians away hanged to a tree Farrow and Brown followed up and dashed into their fortifications again scattering them in every direction Farrow's tactics were to go into camp early and at night start fires, after which he would again break camp and head the Indians off

Their resources for warfare and for fight were at last exhausted, and the chief a shrewd fellow known as Jack sent a messenger to the pursuers asking upon what terms they would be allowed to surrender Farrow answered that they must surrender without condition or fight it out, and that he would stay with them until all were captured After waiting a few days the Indians concluded to give up and come into camp as previously reported The campaign reflects the greatest credit upon all who took part in it, and demonstrates that Indians can be made faithful and efficient soldiers, and are specially adapted to border warfare

THE THURMAN BILL.

Decision by the Supreme Court Sustaining the Action by the U. S. Circuit Court Declaring the Bill to be Constitutional

OPINION OF THE MAJORITY DELIVERED BY CHIEF JUSTICE WAITE

An Argument of the Principles of Law and Equity Involved by Justices Strong and Field dissenting

SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN

Washington Oct —Supreme court ... of ... Union Pacific Railroad to appellants the United States appeal from the court ... and No ... Central Pacific Railroad Co ... appellants Albert Gallatin appeal ... circuit court of the United States for the district of California

These cases both of which involve the constitutionality of the Pacific railroad act of May ... known as the Thurman ... were decided at the decisions announced ... the last Monday of the last term ... it owing to great pressure of business neither the majority of the court nor the justices who dissented were able to prepare written opinions in time to be delivered when the decision was rendered Opinions have since however been prepared and were delivered this afternoon Chief Justice Waite read the opinion of the majority of the court sustaining the constitutionality of the act in question and dissenting opinions were delivered by Associate Justices Bradley Strong and Field

The opinion of the chief justice which deals especially with the case of the Union Pacific is in substance as follows

The precise point to be determined in the opinion of the court is whether a statute which requires a company in the management of its affairs to set aside a portion of its income as a sinking fund to meet its subsidy bonds and other mortgage debts when they mature deprives the road of its property without due process of law or in any other way improperly interferes with its vested rights The court holds that a railroad company is subject to legislative control so far as its business affects public interests and that by a reservation contained in the chartering act of 1862 and 1864 congress retains full power to make such alterations and amendments of the charter as come within the just scope of legislative power In so doing it cannot undo what has already been done nor unmake contracts which have already been made but it may provide for what shall be done in the future, and may direct what preparation shall be made for the due performance of contracts already entered into In less than twenty years from the present time there will become due from the Union Pacific Company about eight millions of dollars secured by first and subsidy mortgages besides capital stock representing $36 000 000 more With the exception of the land grant little if anything except the earnings of the company can be depended on to meet these obligations when they mature These earnings the company after paying interest on its own bonds, has been dividing from time to time among its stockholders without laying by anything to meet the enormous debt which is soon to become due It is stock holders of the present time are receiving, in the shape of dividends that which those of the future may be compelled to lose The United States on copy toward this corporation a two-fold relation—that of sovereign and that of creditor In their relation of sovereign it is their duty to see to it that current stockholders do not appropriate to their own use that which in equity belongs to others. A legislative regulation which does no more than require them to submit their just contribution toward the payment of a bonded debt cannot in any sense be said to deprive them of their property without due process of law The court holds, therefore that the legislation complained of may be sustained as a reasonable regulation of the affairs of the corporation and promotive of the interests of the public and the corporators It is also warranted under authority by way of amendment, to change or modify the rights privileges and immunities granted by the charter The judgment of the lower court is affirmed

DISSENTING OPINIONS

From this decision Justice Strong Bradley and Field dissent in long and carefully prepared opinions Justice Strong says

The Thurman act is a plain transgression of legislative power that the government in its contract with railroad companies laid aside its sovereignty and that the contract is no part of the charter of the Union Pacific company or of the acts of 1862 and 1864 It was a subsequent transaction and the United States became a party to it, not in its sovereign character but as a civil corporation with the same rights and obligations as a private person and no more But what does the act of 1878 attempt to do? It does not purport to be a repeal of the charter all its provisions have in view the imposition of additional obligations upon the railroad company Its leading purpose is to take control of the property of the debtor and sequester it for securing of a debt which by the terms of a contract is not due and payable for years to come To claim such a power is to claim the right to disregard a contract entirely and substitute for it a different one without consent of the debtor If the United States can exact now one quarter of the net earnings of each of these companies and place it in their treasury they can by the same power and with the same reason exact the whole of the earnings or any other property equal to the amount of debt Such legislative power as this is not only not conferred by the constitution but in effect is expressly denied in those clauses of the 5th amendment which provide that no person shall be deprived of life liberty or property without due process of law, and that private property shall not be taken for public use without just compensation Furthermore it may well be doubted whether the act of 1878 is even an attempted exercise of legislative power a statute undertaking to take the property of A and transfer it to B, is no legislation It would not be a law it would be a decree or sentence—the right to declare which, if it exists at all is in the judicial department of the government Congress would in such a case be trying to perform the functions of a court. By the act under consideration, the creditor becomes the custodian of the debtor's property and acquires the right to hold and manage it as if it were his own It is absurd to say that this is not practically a radical change in relations between parties established by contract and it is equally impossible to maintain that it is not depriving debtors of their property without due process of law The store the act of 1878 is not only unauthorized by any power existing in congress but is an infraction of the prohibition contained in the 5th amendment to the constitution

The dissenting opinion of Justice Field begins as follows

I also dissent from the judgment of the court in these cases The doctrines announced will in my opinion create a great insecurity in the title to in corporate property in the country With many assertions to the contrary they in fact declare that the general government is under no legal obligation to fulfill its contracts and whether it shall do so in any case or not is a question of policy and not of duty They also recognize its right to appropriate by legislative decree the earnings of a corporation with which it deals without judicial inquiry and determination as to such earnings thus sanctioning the exercise of judicial functions in its own cases and finally they assert a supremacy of the federal over the state government in control of the corporations of the latter utterly subversive of the rights of states

After reciting the organization of the Central Pacific Railroad Company as a corporation of the state of California the resolutions of power made in the company's charter the construction of the road and its full compliance in all respects with its engagements and the passage of the Thurman act requiring the establishment of a sinking fund, Justice Field continues

It is not material in the view I take of the subject whether the deposit in the treasury of the creditor of this large sum be termed payment or by jugglery of words it be called something else it is the exaction from the company of money belonging to it for which the original contract did not stipulate that constitutes the objectionable feature The act of 1878 makes a complete change in the rights and liabilities of the company The purpose, however disguised by specious pretexts is to coerce by legislative decree the payment of moneys years in advance of the time prescribed by the original contract That it is unconstitutional in its character and is unjust in its operation I have no doubt whatever, and I have yet to hear any reason which seems to me even plausible for its maintenance I do not understand or appreciate that doctrine which would ascribe to the federal government a sovereign right to treat as it may choose corporations with which it deals and exempt it from that great law of morality which should bind all governments as it binds all individuals to do justice and keep faith

With regard to invasion of law upon the rights of the state of California Justice Field concludes as follows

The Central Pacific Railroad is in any sense a state corporation and in creating it the state reserved the same control over it which it possesses over other railroad and telegraph companies created by it The charges to control and manage it in all particulars required for public service and there is any doubt in the minds of any one who has the least respect for the reserved rights of states that over its own creations the state has supreme authority ... less than I am utterly at a loss to find where authority on the part of the United States to interfere with a state in this respect and take such control from it is to be found except in the theory of those who regard the general government as the all controlling power of the nation to which states even in local matters must bend and I dissent from any such theories The government created by the constitution left to the states the control of local matters and it never entered into the conception of its framers that under the creations of states could be taken by it from their control and they left powerless and helpless in the matter

Olympia Oct 20 1879

A fresh and thrilling new or startling has transpired in either house the presence of a large number of lobby members betoken active work in the future The event of the day was Mr Dunbar's final option bill in the council A large number of visitors and spectators were present and the speeches of the members both pro and con were applauded most heartily In spite the music supposed to exist in the preliminaries and the presence of an exceedingly fierce looking sergeant at arms.

Council.

C B — An act to provide for the terms of holding the terms of court in the first judicial district of Washington territory and for the expenses of the same passed—ayes 8 nays 1

C B — An act to simplify and provide for the correction of records of county roads

C B — An act giving to the majority of the citizens of every election precinct for general election in the territory of Washington the power to prohibit or permit the license of drinking saloons or houses for the sale and drinking of spirituous or intoxicating liquors within their respective precincts passed

McCoy made an eloquent and feeling speech in favor of the bill declaring that the responsibility would be by the measure rested with the people that it was their power to either take advantage of it or reject it

Dunbar opposed it on the ground that this question had already been submitted to the people in the shape of an amendment to the constitution lately adopted and had been by them overwhelmingly defeated and maintained that under such circumstances the legislature had no right to saddle such a law upon them

Dunbar in reply said that it was the male portion of the territory who cast the vote referred to and drew attention to the fact that those having no vote in the matter were those most affected—namely the women and children—declaring that the vote would have been far different could they have had a voice

If this bill is safely piloted through the house it will only be after an uncommonly rough passage

A large number of house bills were read twice consuming the major part of the day Adjourned

The Jim River—The Longest Stream in the World not Navigable.

The Dakota river, vulgarly known as "Jim" river is a stream worthy of more than passing notice Geographical writers have heretofore paid little attention to this great water course with its commonplace nickname—mostly, we presume, because they have never had their attention directed to the fact that it is the longest river in the world not capable of being navigable in any of its parts. Having directed the attention to this striking feature of its physical make up, an explanation of how it acquired its homely pseudonym may prove of interest. The early French traders and missionaries who came this way gave it its original appellation, and among them it was known as River aux Jacques This was afterward anglicized into plain James river, and speedily vulgarized into the more repugnant title of Jim river. Congress, in 1861, took the subject in hand, having perhaps a vague idea of the part which this extensive stream is to take in the future of the new west, and decreed that "it shall hereafter be called the Dakota river." But congressional enactments are not always strictly obeyed, and in this case there seems to be no disposition to accord it the Dakota its legal cognomen. It is known as the Jim, is spoken of as the Jim, and printed the Jim oftener than any other way. But there is not much of anything in a name. The river is there, and it will doubtless flow on forever, whether it be known as the Dakota, the James or plain Jim We have stated that it is the longest stream in the world which cannot be navigated in any portion by steam vessels This we believe to be the fact It rises near latitude 48, and traverses 525 miles of country It is an exceedingly crooked stream, constantly doubling upon itself, and crossing and winding along its prairie bed Though we have no official measurement of its crooks and curves, its actual length cannot be less than 1000 miles Throughout the large portion of its length it maintains a nearly uniform depth and breadth, and moves with a sluggish current There are a few of the characteristics of the Dakota river which waters a valley of incomparable native richness Settlers are now flocking to its banks and in a year or two every quarter section of the valley will be occupied and worked

Under Argument —The case of the State of Oregon vs William Watkinds, is at present attracting the attention of the circuit court of the third judicial district for the misapplication of public funds Counsel for defendant has filed a motion to strike complaint from the files of the court on the grounds of their not being signed by the district attorney which motion is now being argued Hon J M Thompson and Hon A C Gibbs appear on behalf of the state and Messrs Knight and Lord for the defendant These and counter motions will, undoubtedly, take up so much time that the real issues of this and other cases against late state officials will not come up for some time

AN OLD STORY.

There is a dispute, involving something very like recrimination, between the authorities of the United States and those of the state of Colorado, in relation to the Ute outbreak. The talk between them is indirect, that is, it is not in the form of official correspondence, but appears in statements from each side, addressed to the country through the agents of the press. But the fact is, there is nothing unusual in the conditions of this outbreak, or of the circumstances which led to it. It is the natural result of an attempt to maintain the reservation system, holding vast tracts of land for small bodies of Indians who make no use of it, while the settlements of civilization are pressing in on every side. The Indians want to rove about, and the whites insist on their keeping within their own limits. Nor is the Indian's right to large tracts of unused lands, even though set apart as a reservation, held sacred by the whites. Though the whites do not go on the reservation lands to make farms, yet they do go upon them to hunt mines, and sometimes to find pasturage. On the other hand the Indians do not stay closely upon their reservations, but roam about here and there, often committing petty offenses against their white neighbors, which the latter resent and punish with severity. Trouble of this kind had long been brewing about the Ute reservation before the outbreak. It is said that the first information received at the Indian office at Washington of any trouble with the Utes was on the 5th July last, when Gov. Pitkin of Colorado telegraphed the commissioner that Agent Meeker complained that the commanding officer at Fort Steele paid no attention to his repeated requests for a force to keep the Indians where they belonged; that a roving band of the Utes, who had left the reservation, had burned more timber in a few weeks' time than the white settlers had cut in twenty years, and that this and other acts had produced great exasperation among the whites. On the 15th of August it became known to the Indian bureau that the Utes had roused the ire of settlers by the destruction of property by fires kindled to drive the game to some particular spot, and that serious threats had been made. Prior to this date a dispatch was sent to Agent Meeker to take immediate steps to secure the return of the Indians to their reservation, and authorizing him to call for military assistance. In the meantime the war department was laboring under the impression that the trouble had been exaggerated by the Indian bureau, and that there was no danger of an outbreak. A communication was received from the war office on the 15th of August, containing a number of reports which exonerated the Indians, and stated that though they had killed a large quantity of game it was not believed they had kindled the forest fires. In the face of these statements, however, the commissioner received a letter from G. B. Thompson, a settler residing somewhere in the vicinity of Middle Park, stating that the Indians were burning timber and property near him, and threatening to burn his improvements. A few days later another letter was received from Thompson in which he complained of further depredations, and said that he meant to ascertain if the Indians were not amenable to the laws of the state. He was answered that the United States authorities would make an effort to secure the identification of the Indians, in which event they would be turned over to the civil authorities for punishment. Instructions to this effect were sent to Agent Meeker, and Thompson, and a sheriff and posse went to the reservation to make the arrests but could not find the Indians complained of. Thompson again complained of the danger to his property, and wrote the Indian bureau as follows: "Unless the department takes immediate steps to punish the Indians who have destroyed my property and attempted to burn my house, I will take such steps in the matter as will attract immediate attention." It has since been stated that Thompson actually attempted to carry this threat into execution; but the incident shows something of the nature of the irrepressible conflict between the whites of Colorado and the handful of Indians who have a reservation of twelve million acres covering all the western division of the state, but who yet are not content with it, but want to wander outside for the chase and for indulgence of their thievish and other criminal propensities. Wherever there is a reservation upon the borders of which white settlers are pressing the same thing is witnessed, in less or greater degree. Agent Meeker not only endeavored to keep his Indians on their reservation, but tried to induce them to work and become self-supporting. But this was they did not like, converted it into an additional grievance, said they ought to be supported by the government or allowed to follow the chase, insisted that land which they wanted for pasturage should not be ploughed up, shot one of the agent's ploughmen, and treated the agent himself with indignity and violence. Then when the troops were ordered up to keep the peace, they made the attack on them, murdered everybody at the agency, and acted generally in the usual Indian manner. It is throughout pretty much the same old story we have had a score of times, the only essential variations being in the names of the Indian tribes and of the victims of savage violence. So long as the reservation system exists these outbreaks are likely to occur. The first necessary thing is to abolish tribal relations and distinctions, let the Indians have lands in severalty, and then make each individual Indian amenable to the laws of the state or territory. No locality where there is a reservation can say with certainty and confidence that it is done with Indian troubles. The people of Colorado are resolved to take this opportunity to insist that the Indian shall go; and the governor and leading citizens strongly intimate that if the general government do not remove them the state will exterminate them. And this is the old story, too.

LEGISLATIVE SESSIONS.

Connecticut recently voted on a couple of proposed amendments to her constitution, one of which was to limit her legislature to biennial sessions. This was rejected and the New York Sun warmly commends the lawmakers of the state for their action. In a despotic system, it says, no legislature is necessary. The autocrat makes the laws and enforces them. His decree is sufficient; but in a popular government the legislature must be kept constantly in life and meet frequently; and it is added as a support to the argument that republican government necessarily costs more in some respects than despotic.

This is a ridiculous way of stating the subject. It is notorious that every state has too much legislation rather than too little. That is, every state is governed too much; and too much government is really the essence of despotism. So we find despotism on that side rather than on the other. Extremes always meet. Their partitions divide the bounds of extreme democratic freedom on one hand and a rigorous despotism on the other; and the real nature of the latter is not changed by calling it by some name which is associated with vague ideas of popular liberty. It may be admitted that among the greatest fools in the country are those who habitually decry our legislatures and sneer at their proceedings. In so doing they decry our whole constitutional and republican system. But how much wiser are they who, on the other hand, think it necessary for the maintenance of a regulated liberty and a rational system of legislation, to have the law makers meet so often as to keep the laws in a perpetual flux, and to tempt inexperienced men to crude and trivial legislation? Biennial legislative sessions are frequent enough for any state. Connecticut should have adopted Oregon's method.

THE ANTI-TILDEN REVOLT.

The democratic bolters in New York have issued a vigorous manifesto in justification of their action. They say boldly that their war is against Tildenism, which is defined to be "the proscription of all within the party who do not worship the personal power which the system has created." Robinson is opposed because, as governor, he has "proved himself to be Tilden's most subservient agent, and as chief executive of the state has become a mere appendage or instrument to aid the purposes and designs of Mr. Tilden in his presidential claims and aspirations." The movement against the Robinson ticket is justified as a remonstrance against the "design to center in Mr. Tilden for his personal ends the power and influence of the democratic party of the state." Tilden is denounced for attempting to crush every democrat whom he has supposed to be in his way, and for causing Gov. Robinson to use his executive power to build up a personal party devoted to Tildenism and to punishing all remonstrants. Private individuals and public officers have alike become the victims of the Tilden juggernaut, which has been driven without remorse over everybody in the way. And this is felt to be the greater hardship from the fact that it is the democrats of the city of New York, who are the sole reliance of the party for victory in the state, who have been so badly dealt with. It is war to the knife between Tilden and his foes of his own household; and the sage of the ciphers seems doomed at last to utter overthrow.

M. de Lesseps in a conversation at Paris recently with a representative of the New York World said most positively that he should go on with his Darien canal scheme. With greatest confidence he asserted that the money would be forthcoming when he should be fully ready and make an appeal for it. He is coming to America shortly, and will visit the isthmus, to make personal examination of the route. Strange to say, he does not see why the United States should raise any objection to the prosecution of this great work with capital from France. It should be clear enough that were great sums of French capital invested under a French charter in the United States of Colombia, France would soon be called on to assume a virtual protectorate over the country. Our people foresee this, and cannot look on with indifference.

The Pennsylvania cremationist, Dr. Lemoyne, recently died at his home at Washington in that state. In compliance with his orders his body was cremated in his furnace, the operation requiring about four hours. The crematory was sealed up for three days, when it was opened and the ashes placed in an urn provided by the family.

Senator Lamar has delivered his promised speech in Mississippi. The town of Oxford was the place chosen for it. But notwithstanding all promises not a word did he say about that Yazoo transaction. Of course he would not denounce the system to which he owes his political elevation.

The Utah Northern railway has reached Montana and is being built rapidly into that territory. It follows up the tributaries of Snake river and passes "the divide" to the tributaries of the Missouri.

In Iowa, Gear, republican, beats Trimble, democrat, for the governorship by 80,000, and Campbell, greenbacker, by 105,000. His majority over the combined vote of his opponents is 25,000.

At the Blackfeet agency in Montana there are 7628 Indians; at the Crow agency 2190, and at the Flathead agency 1585.

THE INEVITABLE SENTIMENT.

There is at this time unquestionably a deep feeling among the people of the states which sustained the union as to the defiant spirit of the ex-confederates as manifested since they gained political control of both houses of congress. The people will not endure to hear the rebellion praised in the highest councils of the nation as a cause equally meritorious with the cause of union and nationality, if not actually more so. They will resent it; and they do resent it, as recent elections show. It is unquestionable also that this feeling has much to do with the great ovations to Gen. Grant. The Christian Union of New York says:

> North and south may as well recognize this fact at once. Grant's reception means that the loyal of the land are indignant at the conduct of the south, and mean to put the man who conquered the south in command again, if necessary. It means that the men who were soldiers of the union army are resolved that the fruits of their victories shall not be lost; that white republicans shall be protected in every state in the union, and that blacks shall be free to vote as they choose, and hold office if they can get elected. This is the significance of the frenzy of enthusiasm which greets the arrival of the great leader of the armies that put down the southern rebellion. One other thing it means. That the nation is supreme and the states subordinate, whenever there is a collision between their interpreters of law; and that the new revolution of the solid south in favor of state sovereignty shall be defeated at all cost.
>
> The north does not distinctly wish Gen. Grant to be the next president. It would greatly prefer John Sherman, whose extraordinary administration of the treasury department has made him one of the most conspicuous of living statesmen. But when the lessons of the war are in danger of being read backward; when questions settled by the war are declared to be totally unsettled; when the lives lost and the precious millions spent in the war are declared to have been wasted in vain—then the north looks instinctively to the great captain of the age. If the south doesn't wish Grant nominated and elected, it must turn short round upon its heel.

[SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN.]

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22—12:35 A. M.—For North Pacific coast regions, generally clear weather.

CITY.

DEATH BY DROWNING.—Yesterday forenoon the sad news reached this city that Mrs. ... Grey, wife of Mr. Erastus Grey of Milwaukie, had committed suicide by drowning at an early hour yesterday morning. Mrs. Grey had been in poor health for some time past, and the melancholy occurrence. She became possessed with the idea that her ailment was incurable, and the thought so preyed upon her mind, that it is believed to have resulted in the partial dethronement of reason. At times the lady's spirits seemed greatly depressed, and her mind became distracted. Her mental condition was the occasion of much concern to her husband and friends; however, no apprehensions were felt of her making an attempt against her life. Between 12 and 1 o'clock yesterday morning, she arose from her bed and left the room. Awakening, her husband became alarmed and a search was instituted for the missing one. The search was unavailing and was kept up until daylight. As soon as daylight appeared, tracks were discovered leading from the house toward the mill pond situated a short distance away. Very soon afterward the body of Mrs. Grey was found floating in the pond into which she evidently jumped while laboring under a fit of temporary insanity. Where the body was found the water is about four feet deep. Her hands were grasping some drift-wood which had floated within reach during her struggles, and was held with the clutch of death. The deceased was a very estimable lady, beloved by all who knew her, and her untimely end casts a gloom over the community in which she has so long resided. Mr. Grey, the bereaved husband, has been employed in the Standard Flouring Mills for ...

THE MECHANICS' FAIR.

SECOND DAY.

Large Attendance—Many New Exhibits—A Great Improvement in Arrangements—Description of some of the Displays.

Mechanics' Fair Pavilion last night presented the appearance of a complete, well arranged exhibition. All day yesterday the finishing touches to the different exhibits were made, some were rearranged, others added to. The principal addition to the display was that of furniture, which nearly fills the entire north gallery. The exhibits in this line are arranged with special good taste, are by far the finest ever made in this state and reflect great credit on Portland manufacturers and dealers. The attendance was large, and agreeable surprise was expressed by all hands at the extent, the splendid arrangement, and the beauty of the displays. The following is a partial description of the exhibits on main floor:

F. SICHET & CO.

Show cans of ground and green Java, Mocha, Costa Rica and Rio coffees; all kinds of ground spices, chocolate, snowflake yeast powder, etc.

OLDS & SUMMERS

Show an immense variety of lamps and chandeliers, glassware, China and ironstone ware, crockery, casters and plated ware.

R. L. STONE

Shows one of his largest cases containing a solid silver salad dish, punch set with six goblets, a magnificent epergne, a silver fruit stand of entirely new pattern, having two Egyptian figures on pedestal, holding a basket; a tea set of six pieces, each of different pattern from the other, and numerous smaller pieces; also the finest carving set ever seen here. He also shows near the fountain an upright case containing a triple epergne beautiful opera glasses, card cases, etc.

E. J. NORTHRUP & CO.,

Have a big display of wheels mounted on the celebrated Colling's improved coil spring axle, a tall stack of hubs, buggy beds, and an immense variety of carriage hardware.

L. BLUMAUER & CO.,

Exhibit what with truth might be termed a small drug store. They have a double upright and horizontal case well filled with fine fancy toilet articles. Some of the dressing cases are exquisitely beautiful. Back of the case are filled drug bottles, flavoring extracts, brushes, Turkish towels and a pyramid of fruit wax.

THE CAPITAL LEATHER AND MANUFACTURING CO.,

Of Salem have a large octagonal rack completely covered with harness, saddles, collars, bridles, saddle trees and leather, all excellent specimens of the products of Oregon.

HODGE, DAVIS & CO.

Have an upright case containing chemicals, another containing artists' materials, another containing perfumery in cut glass bottles, a full line of fluid extracts of their own manufacture flavoring extracts, a sample board of McKinstry's fire and water proof paints, mixed paints, oils and varnishes, paint brushes, lubricating and burning oils, and last, but not least, the Oregon Kidney Tea.

C. T. BELCHER & CO.

Have one of the finest displays in the pavilion, or strictly speaking two exhibits. Their main stand contains lamps and chandeliers, French cut glass ware, French China flower pots, adorned with gilt, majolica ware, bronze vases and figures, iridescent Bohemian glassware, patent tubular lanterns, the best of the kind ever invented, and Queen's patent transparent oil can, for which they are sole agents. Some of the stand lamps are marvels of beauty.

In an upright case Messrs. Belcher & Co. show French China decorated and gold band sets, choice silver-plated ware, Bohemian and French vases, two handsome Italian marble wall reliefs, a rich French decorated China toilet set, and some fine cutlery.

GENERAL NOTES

Excellent music is furnished every evening by the Washington Guard Band, under the leadership of Mr. Peterson. The following is the programme for to night:

1—Grand March.
2—Adante and Allegro.
3—Soldaten Polka.
4—Selections from Martha.
5—Garibaldi War Galop.
6—Hoffnung Strailen Waltz.

Mr. L. Samuels, publisher of the West Shore got out the first number of the Portland Mechanics' Fair yesterday afternoon. It is a bright little sheet.

The managers have wisely concluded to check canes umbrellas and parasols free of charge.

A SUGGESTION.

THE OREGONIAN suggests that each of the musical firms exhibiting in the pavilion, give a vocal and instrumental soiree on alternate afternoons, say from 2 to 5 o'clock. Enough local talent could be secured at a slight expense to make such concerts interesting and they would help to advertise the firms. At the Centennial Exhibition the afternoon concerts by Philadelphia local talent formed one of the attractive features in the main building, and always drew crowds about the displays of exhibitors under whose auspices the concerts were given.

DIED AMONG STRANGERS.

An Unknown Steerage Passenger on the "State of California" Falls into an Epileptic Fit and Expires

At eleven o'clock last night while a part of the steerage passengers on the State of California were eating a lunch one of their number fell forward on his face, and after a few gasps died. He was a stranger to all on board, and as the tickets had been taken up his identity could not be ascertained.

Dr. E. Petre, of Steuben county, Indiana, who occupied a state-room with the man, gave an OREGONIAN reporter the following information concerning the dead passenger: He was quite conversant on the passage; stated that he was from Folsom, Cal.; that he had been mining in Australia for 13 years, and that he was going to work near Portland. The dead man was about forty years old, 5 feet 10 or 11 inches high, had blue eyes, short moustache and full dark beard, dark hair, prominent cheek bones and clear skin. He wore light brown overalls, dark brown duck flannel lined coat and a blue flannel shirt.

Coroner Cooke was summoned, and to accommodate the principal witnesses who leave for eastern Oregon this morning, proceeded to hold an inquest, which is in session as we go to press.

WALTER BROTHERS.

Their Removal to more Commodious Quarters—A Fine Store and Large Stock of Splendid Goods—The Place to Buy on the Best Terms—Carpets, Curtains, Lambrequins, Etc., Etc.

The growth of the country and the advancement of its people in wealth and civilization, is judged correctly by the enlargement of the mercantile establishments which supply the demands for the necessaries and luxuries of a high state of civilization. The scanty furniture which was used in the cabins of the pioneers and the bare floors upon which they walked were consistent with the beginning of an era out of which has grown a period of refinement and luxury, realized only in a country highly favored with the resources of progress and wealth. The palatial residences that adorn city and country now are indicative of the progress which has been made the furnishment of these residences betoken a growth in refinement and the use of the luxuries which is only seen in highly favored countries. The adornment of their homes is a characteristic of our people, and they who furnish the means of doing so at the least cost are deserving of special notice.

WALTER BROS.

Have been so long in the carpet, house furnishing and general upholstery business in Oregon, and goods from their establishment are found in so many homes in our state that it seems superfluous to speak of them as we would of new comers or strangers. For several years they have stood in the lead as dealers in carpets, curtains, paper hangings, etc., and by their superior relations to eastern manufacturers and dealers, as well as strict integrity and close attention to business have built up a very large trade, supplying not only the residences of many of the people directly, but doing a

WHOLESALE BUSINESS,

Which has grown into proportions beyond that of any other house in the northwest, and to meet the demands of which now requires the extended preparations which we propose to notice. Their facilities for buying of the manufacturers and eastern houses are such that they are able to supply this trade at the lowest possible rates, and the merchant from the interior who desires any goods in their line will find that their stock kept constantly on hand will afford the amplest opportunities for selections both as to quality and prices of goods. Their

SPLENDID STORE,

Now just occupied, which has been fitted up expressly to accommodate their large business, is one of the finest and most commodious as well as the largest north of San Francisco being equal to any in that city in most of its appointments. It is situated in the new Union (formerly Oro Fino) block, west side of First street, between Stark and Oak, in the heart of the business portion of the city, and convenient of access from the leading hotels, depots and steamer landings. It is in fact one of the best business sites for their trade which could have been selected in Portland.

THE FIRST FLOOR.

The show windows on either side of the main entrance are sure to attract the attention of passers by, by the beautiful and rich goods which are displayed in them to such advantage. Entering, the visitors will find upon the right hand a large and varied assortment of upholstering goods of every quality, embracing hair cloths, chintz, reps, raw silks, plushes and satins for coverings for furniture to suit the humblest or the most aristocratic tastes. Their stock of fringes, gimps, cords, tassels, tacks, castors, etc., is also extensive and of every quality required to meet the growing wants of their large trade. In the rear on this floor is a large stock of oil cloths cocoa matting, China matting and mats of all qualities. On the left and in the center is by far the most extensive assortment of wall decorations, wall paper, etc., which can be found in the city, comprising every article in this line which is or can be required in house furnishing.

A SPACIOUS BALCONY

Extends around this room which is 40x100 feet dimensions, and affords access to the uppermost shelves. The shelving is constructed so as to hold and show the goods to the best possible advantage.

THE STAIRWAY

Leading to the second floor is elaborately constructed, and elegantly finished, the newel posts and bannisters being inlaid hard wood and carved in the most beautiful manner. The steps are broad and ascend so gradually that one reaches the floor above without any perceptible effort.

THE SECOND FLOOR

Is 50x120 feet in dimensions and is the largest sales and store room devoted to such purposes on the Pacific coast. On this floor is stored and exhibited an immense stock of carpets, window cloths, lace curtains, crumb cloths, stair rods, cornice mouldings and like fixtures. Their carpets embrace all qualities and patterns made at the best manufactories and from the most durable and strongest hemp to the finest velvet. On all sides this large room contains tons of carpeting, ingrains of all qualities, three ply, tapestry and body Brussels with beautiful border to match, Axminster and Moquette. The fine selection of Turkish hand made mats found here are novel and beautiful. No matter how humble or how palatial may be the home of the customer, the wherewithal can be found here to furnish it in keeping with his circumstances and calling. The goods are fresh, all from leading factories and of the latest styles.

WORK ROOM

Adjoining their carpet room on the second floor is a commodious and well lighted work shop, where competent workmen fit and sew carpets for retail buyers, as well as make up the elegant lambrequins, valiances, etc., for which this city furnishes a large demand.

THE OFFICE,

Which is situated in the rear on the first floor is particularly well adapted to the purpose being convenient of access, well lighted and ventilated, and commanding a full view of the entire room below as well as the stairway and part of the upper room.

Altogether the whole establishment is one showing taste and skill as well as great experience in all its designs and appointments, and indicates the permanence and growth of this reliable old firm. People who visit Portland will be losing a sight well worth seeing if they neglect to inspect this establishment, and those who desire to purchase need go no further in search of better goods, more accommodating dealers or more reasonable terms.

Nabob Whisky is recommended by the faculty for family and medical use. It is pure and is the best whisky on the Pacific coast for indigestion, nervousness and dyspepsia.

I. G. Davidson does not mislead the public by giving out worthless cards, promising to make $6 worth of photo work for $5, but simply charges $2 50 per dozen for cards and $4 for cabinets.

"Miss Millie Chrissy," the two headed lady, is a perfect little gem, or gems, or a gem and a half, we don't know which. She sings in one or two voices very sweetly, and in dancing we never saw any one more graceful.

DOORS, BLINDS, PAINTS.—Coggins & Beach are clearing out their present stock, slightly damaged by water, at a small advance on cost, and are rushing it off to make room for new goods to arrive shortly. Dealers should buy at the low prices.

There are a lot of people in Portland, as elsewhere, always ready to strain at the smallest gnat and swallow the biggest camel who will doubtless put the "two headed Nightingale" down as outside the pale of ordinary humanity! If this prejudice should carry any so far as to lead them to avoid her, they alone will be the losers.

D. W. Prentice & Co. have just received the last invoice of a new and select stock of sheet music, comprising the latest and best music from large publishers both in Europe and this country. This together with their already large stock gives them by far the largest selection in that line ever brought to this city.

YOUNG LADIES.

Young ladies and married women suffering from irregularities, accompanied with those fearful bilious headaches, loss of appetite, and general debility, can be cured by using a few bottles of Pfunder's Oregon Blood Purifier.

FALSE IMPRESSION.

It is generally supposed by physicians and the people generally that Dyspepsia cannot invariably be cured, but we are pleased to say that GREEN'S AUGUST FLOWER has never, to our knowledge, failed to cure Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint in all its forms, such as Sour Stomach, Costiveness, Sick Headache, Palpitation of the Heart, Indigestion, bad taste in the month &c. Out of the 50,000 doz en bottles sold last year not a single failure was reported, but thousands of complimentary letters received from Druggists of wonderful cures. Three doses will relieve any case. Try it. Sample Bottles 10 cents. Regular size 75 cents. For sale by Hodge, Davis & Co.

HAYES H. & L. TRUCK AND FIRE ESCAPE.

At a meeting held by Vigilance Hook and Ladder Co. No. 1, on the 7th inst., a committee consisting of ... Wm. Lundberg and Robert ... was appointed to prepare a petition to be presented to the common council asking that body to authorize the purchase of a Hayes hook and ladder truck and fire escape combined. The committee prepared a petition which was presented at the regular meeting of the council held Oct. 15th. The following extracts are taken from the petition:

"The style of the apparatus with which Vigilance Hook and Ladder Company is now furnished comported well enough with the size of the city when it was purchased, but it fails to be of much service in a city of the present size of Portland.

It has often been observed by all present at any ordinary fire that by far the greatest difficulty in ... is to be able to secure convenient access by the firemen to the flames. That the flames be ... entirely inside of the building in almost every case, and the fire either commencing in or having a start in the second or third story, the firemen have no opportunity to combat the flames until the building is so far burned down as to be falling apart. Most of the buildings of this city have high stories, some even 22 feet in hight. The Hayes truck apparatus is so constructed that it is easily worked, and the number of firemen requisite with the hose and water in them from a steam fire engine can be raised any height of 60 feet or less in one minute along side of a building, and can then be moved with ease and celerity without stopping the water. By means of this one or more streams of water can be poured upon the fire at its most dangerous points. Water can be thrown through upper doors or windows and admittance can be obtained for firemen to upper stories, or access to roofs with safe and expeditious means of escape in case of overwhelming danger. Often before a fire has spread to any considerable extent it might be easily put out, if only the firemen could reach the particular locality. * * * * It is believed that two additional steam fire engines would not add so much to the efficiency of the fire department as one Hayes hook and ladder truck and fire escape combined and yet the latter costs less than one ordinary steam fire engine. * * * * As near as can be estimated the cost of a Hayes ladder apparatus complete will not exceed $4000. Probably our present hook and ladder truck and appliances which cost about $1800 may be sold for service in some of the smaller cities * * * Our company at present has a full roll of members and a complete organization and by its prompt ness heretofore in cases of fire, establishes its claims to your favorable consideration to purchase for the use a Hayes' hook and ladder truck and fire escape combined"

The petition was read and referred to the committee on fire and water.

WM. SCHEFFLER'S ST. HELENA

SANITARY, VACUUM DISTILLED GRAPE BRANDY AND GOOD OLD EDGE HILL WINES.

Mr Scheffler is sole proprietor of the principle known as the vacuum process of distilling, by which the fusil oils are left with the residue and not incorporated with the brandy, leaving it pure and free from all deleterious substances which does and must exist in all alcoholic liquors distilled by the usual process of boiling heat. California Physicians have pronounced their preference of it to all other Doctor Cox, government revenue officer at Cincinnati, Ohio, says in his report, that after ten years' of close investigation he can safely say that very few, if any, pure wines or brandy are exported from the Old Continent to this. He has found none in his many analyses—that all are doctored before leaving France. The French Consul at Buenos Ayres writes home to his government that so much complaint is made there of the appearance of litharge and other dangerous drugs in all their French wines, that there is great danger of losing the trade of the Argentine States. Other proofs could be cited were it necessary, to prove the superiority of the best class of California wines and brandy. Orders from responsible parties, addressed to Wm. Scheffler, or Geo. H. Beach, St. Helena, Napa county, Cal., will receive prompt attention.

No person can afford to be without it, and those who have once used it never will. OVERALLS

Are sold by leading dealers in this city and on this coast, because—

"THEY CONTAIN THE BEST MATERIAL, ARE SEWN WITH LINEN THREAD, And ARE THE MOST PERFECT FITTING."

In putting on or taking off Overalls, the strain on the crotch often causes them to rip; and to remedy this we are making a continuous strip of cloth, extending the entire length of both sides of the Overall from the crotch, and secured thereto at every point. Under these circumstances, we claim that our Overalls will stand greater strain than any other make in the market.

"BEERBOHM."

Who He Is—Some Information for the Uninitiated.

(Chicago Commercial Graphic, Oct. 1.)

Beerbohm is a name which by long association with the fluctuations of prices and consequently with the fluctuations of fortune to which the speculator and trader are subject, has come to be a sort of oracle, almost as mysterious, and sometimes quite as ambiguous in its utterances as that of Delphos.

To the uninitiated who may ask "Who or what is Beerbohm?" we answer that he is the man in London who sends to the Gold & Stock Telegraph company in New York the daily London quotations for breadstuffs which are forwarded to Chicago and posted up on 'change every morning, to exercise their influence—be the same more or less—upon the breadstuffs market of Chicago, and consequently upon the whole commercial world within the reach of telegraph wires.

Beerbohm has been the subject of such an amount of denunciation and "cursory remarks" from the Chicago Board of Trade men, that if he could hear them he would be appalled. The great point of these denunciations for years past has been the apparent discrepancies between his report of the Transcript of the London market, and his quotations in figures of the price of grain. As, for instance, on Sept. 25th it was known that the Pall Mall Gazette of that day said:

The wheat market has been excited during the past two days and there has been considerable speculation. The best foreign kinds have advanced nearly two shillings per quarter since Monday.

And yet there was nothing in the figures given for wheat in the Beerbohm dispatches of any of those three days that would indicate such a condition of the London markets. And yet the English have so many queer ways of doing things that probably there is an excuse even for Beerbohm. A Chicago gentleman who has just returned from London hunted him up. It was no easy task, for even to the English grain traders in that market, Beerbohm's personality and whereabouts were almost as mysterious as to the American trader. But he did find him, a man well on in years; a thoroughly conservative gentleman who never could be made to see any other price than that which was paid for wheat right under his nose. The great trouble seems to be, first, that there is no system in the grain trade in London as there is in the United States. There are no standards of inspection, no standard grades, and no uniform price, even for the same quality of grain at the same hour of the same day. Everything is sold by sample, and the sample which suits one buyer may not suit another. The same article looks different to different eyes. Some buyers are more experienced and better judges of the article than others. The effect is the same as if every dealer on the Chicago board of trade should be his own inspector. The net result of all this is that there is a great discrepancy in prices. Beerbohm is to some extent compelled to strike an average. If he does this his prices show none of the extremes of the market, and even though the market might be excited, his figures would show but little change in prices. The lack of any established grades also compels him to include the whole range of qualities from what will barely pass as No. 3 spring, up to what is the best No. 2 spring under the general head of "American spring."

Some four years ago the dissatisfaction of the Chicago board of trade with the Beerbohm quotations was so great that they perfected an arrangement with Mr. H. Kains Jackson to send quotations in place of those of Beerbohm. But Mr. Jackson made even a worse muddle of it than Beerbohm. The fault seems to be not so much with these reporters of the market as with the unsystematic way of doing business in London.

The local markets exhibit no particularly new or interesting features. Wheat is coming forward [illegible] the various facilities for transportation will allow, and buyers are taking quite readily all good shipping lots that offer. Prices are about as at last report with no further indications of weakening than were noted yesterday. There is some discrepancy in the quotations which one hears, as the sellers get, as they are generally more [illegible] if not made by the interests of those who give them. Fair lots of shipping are generally, however, conceded to be worth on the wharf here $1 55 per cental. Under some circumstances buyers might bid up 1@2½ cts, while under others the same amount less would be offered. Ships at hand and having quick dispatch, and the fleet under charter at hand will be nearly out by the last of next month. The freight market is reported as still advancing and there is but little disposition shown to take up vessels at the high figure asked.

Produce other than wheat, of a seasonable character are generally plentiful and prices steady with a firmer tendency in oats, potatoes and ripe fruits, and a brisk inquiry for choice dairy produce, hops and salmon.

PORTLAND BETHEL NIGHT SCHOOL.

This enterprise, under the auspices of the Portland Seamen's Friend Society, commenced operations two weeks since, and affords facilities to those who wish to improve their evenings in the different elementary branches of study.

To meet the demands of those who desire to take up the study of languages and higher mathematics, the services of Professor John Murphy, A. M., have been secured. This gentleman is a sound scholar, and his method of imparting instruction is simple, clear, concise; in short, MOST EXCELLENT. He is a Master of Arts, Ex Sizar, Scholar and Ethical Honor Man of Trinity College, Dublin.

REV. R. S. STUBBS,
Chaplain Portland Bethel.

The following Testimonials are a strong guarantee of the gentleman's literary ability and qualifications to teach. Persons wishing to join the night school are informed that the rudimentary and advanced classes will be held from 7 to 9 P. M. in the Bethel, corner of Third and D streets. For particulars enquire of CHAPLAIN STUBBS.

Extracts from Testimonials to Professor John Murphy.

Mr. John Murphy has been resident assistant master in this institution for several years. He was transferred to my charge in August, 1858, with an excellent character. I have found Mr. Murphy faithful, diligent, painstaking and efficient as a teacher in Latin, Greek and Mathematics. I have found him a man of the most scrupulous integrity, of most affable intercourse, of gentlemanly thought and Christian principle, and I shall be always rejoiced to hear of his prosperity, etc., etc.

HENRY CARR, M. A.,
Principal Ballinasloe College.

UNIVERSITY MOUND COLLEGE,
San Francisco, Oct. 9, 1877.

Mr. John Murphy, M. A., has been an instructor in this institution for nearly two sessions. He is a gentleman of high scholastic attainments, having been a sizar and an honor man of Trinity college, Dublin. He has had large experience as a teacher, both in the classical and English departments. * * * As the best proof of my confidence in him as a teacher, I may state that he has been the tutor of my brother, who is preparing for the University of Cambridge, England, and that I am entirely satisfied with his work in this matter, as well as in his classes. JOHN GAMBLE, Principal.

Mr. John Murphy entered the University of Dublin in June, 1855. * * * Among the students of the university generally his attainments as a scholar were always spoken of as of an unusually high order. As to his courses in art and theology, though assistant teacher in the missionary college, Ballinasloe, for nearly the whole time, he succeeded, notwithstanding, in obtaining highly creditable marks at all his undergraduate examinations—ethical honors twice in succession. In his senior year, and recommendation for the prize at the general examination of the junior divinity year. His moral character and conduct, during his entire university course, were perfectly unexceptionable and exemplary, and his steadiness, industry and perseverance all that could be desired.

RICH'D TOWNSEND, M. A.,
Fellow and Tutor,
TRINITY COLLEGE, DUBLIN, May 2, 1863.
